Shooting victim identified

The Midwest Medical Examiner's Office has identified the person who died during a shooting incident which occurred in Long Prairie Sept. 12. Antonio Francis Rodriguez Fortes, 33, of Perham, died early Sunday morning. The medical examiner said Rodriguez Fortes died of homicide due to multiple gunshot wounds. Two other individuals who were shot and injured during the incident remain hospitalized.

Investigators are asking anyone with information about the incident to contact the Long Prairie Police Department at 320-732-2156 or the Todd County Sheriff's Office at 320-732-2158.

Long Prairie Police and Todd County Sheriff's Deputies responded to reports of gunshots at a residence in the 500 block of 2nd Avenue SE in Long Prairie around 3:30 a.m. Sept. 12. When they arrived, officers located a man, now identified as Rodriguez Fortes, deceased just outside the home.

Responding officers located an injured person at the residence. Multiple parties fled from the scene as officers arrived. A second injured person later arrived at CentraCare Hospital in Long Prairie with a gunshot wound.

Investigators are conducting interviews and analyzing evidence collected at the scene. This is an active and ongoing investigation. Based on what is known at this time, investigators have no reason to believe there is an ongoing threat to public safety.

The Long Prairie Police Department is investigating the incident with assistance from the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension and the Todd County Sheriff's Office.

CEC Conference explores many ideas

By Mark Anderson
Managing Editor

The Creating Entrepreneurial Communities (CEC) Conference in Staples showed how communities can create spaces that enliven the town and boost economic development. But it takes help from agencies and the community has to intentionally set out to create the spaces.

One example is the Iron Range Makerspace, a building that brought the maker movement to Hibbing. They opened a shop with manufacturing equipment and tools that allow anyone in the community to make or fix things and share ideas. It is a for-profit enterprise, but was eligible for multiple grants to get started.

Besides being a business incubator and accelerator, it is also a cultural hub of the community. "It becomes a storyboard of what your region is," said Andrew Hanegmon. "We've had more than one 15-year-old start a business."

The local flavor was also important at the session for arts, hosted by Mark Turner of the Five Wings Arts Council. Some of the attendees gave examples of how their communities are using old buildings for gal-

Hwy 10 Paw Spa now open in Staples

By Dawn Timbs
Staples World reporter

If your dog or cat is in need of some grooming after a fun summer of playing outside, or perhaps deserving of a little TLC, you may want to stop by the Hwy 10 Paw Spa in Staples.

Melissa Schulte of Motley opened the downtown spa in January of 2020, "just when everything closed," she said, referring to the Covid pandemic.

Fortunately, most of her business is by appointment, so she was able to continue operating within the government guidelines.

Schulte purchased the business from her friend Jollene Yungbauer, who originated Hwy 10 Paw Spa.

She loves her work Schulte said, adding, "I've always been a dog lover. Originally from St. Cloud Schulte has owned dogs most of her life. She used to raise Dobermans, but in recent years has been raising Mastiffs. Her gentle giant pal, Stella, recently had a litter of puppies and occasionally the entourage accompanies her to work.

New owners at Liquor Depot in Staples

By Dawn Timbs
Staples World reporter

The Liquor Depot in Staples is under new ownership as of April 19, 2021.

Two couples with roots in the Staples community purchased the establishment from Henry and Joanne Schornack, who opened it in 2009.

Tom and Jayne Olson, and Jim and Jackie Tyrrell (all Staples-Motley graduates) are excited to be carrying on the tradition of providing a variety of quality wine, beer and spirits at Liquor Depot.

Some things have remained the same, such as military discounts on Mondays; senior citizen discounts on Tuesdays; and 10-percent savings on wine every Wednesday. There have been a few changes made as well. In addition to the beer cave at Liquor Depot, new coolers have been installed that are home to a variety of craft beer.

Their product line is constantly changing, as is the nature of the liquor business, Tom Olson said.

One of the newer products to hit their shelves is 'Two Chicks,' a line of canned cocktails founded by two women. "They're awesome," Jayne said of the sparkling beverages pointing to one of her favorites that contains vodka cranberry and lime.

In addition to the taste both Jayne and Jackie (who are related) appreciate the name 'Two Chicks,' as they

Motley City Council denies requests at meeting

By Dawn Timbs
Staples World reporter

Two Motley residents were in attendance at the city council's regular meeting Sept. 13, on the agenda to discuss citations they'd received.

Dale Czechowicz was hoping to get permission to keep his dog Jack, which had been deemed dangerous, in the city limits. During the ensuing discussion, Police Chief Jason Borash noted that he had been bitten by Czechowicz's dog in the past when it had gotten loose. It didn't break the skin, he added. Later, while being impounded, the dog attacked the veterinarian without being provoked. Previously, there had been 15 complaints about the dog.

Since being impounded, the dog had been staying at his girlfriend's house, but Czechowicz was hoping to bring him back home, as he was a part of the family and his children were devastated. He'd mended the fence and didn't believe the dog could escape again.

The council, chaired by Acting Mayor Amy Hutchison, proceeded to voice their concerns. Council member Pat O'Regan said he was concerned that the dog could hurt a small child or an elderly person. Council member Steve Johnson acknowledged that dogs become family, but that he had to heed the police chief's advice.

Hutchison said that in order to allow this dog to remain in town, they'd first have to change the ordinance pertaining to dangerous animals. She asked Chief Borash if the city would be legally obligated should this dog hurt someone? Borash said that was correct. Hutchison inquired as to whether the dog would need to be euthanized, and Chief Borash said that he would not have to be if he lived outside the city limits.

Czechowicz was disappointed, but thanked the council for their time.

Konrad Alexander was the second person to approach the council that night, hoping to have two nuisance violations (each at $75) waived. Alexander said that his four-lot property has a dual zoning...both residential and commercial, so he did not feel he should have to remove some items, such as scrap metal piles and tractors.

Chief Borash said that this particular nuisance ordinance applied to both commercial and residential, so Alexander would have been cited anyway.

The council had previously addressed this situation and given Alexander (who has been battling cancer) an extended deadline to clean up his property.

Council member Johnson noted that Alexander was his friend and although it was difficult, he had to go with the recommendation of the police chief and the city clerk/treasurer who were doing their jobs. Johnson also suggested that Alexander attend the upcoming Planning and Zoning Commission meeting, which could perhaps help answer his questions about his property.

In the end, the council approved a motion that Alexander pay one of the fines, but that the other one would be dismissed if his property was cleaned up within the next 14 days.

In other matters the council:

- APPROVED having Chief Borash deliver a letter to the residents at 396 Main St. West, informing them that their property needed to be cleaned up within a week's time. If that didn't take place, then the police chief would get an administrative search warrant allowing the city to be able to clean up the property. The costs would be assessed to the property.
- HEARD from Sherry (Miller) Frisk regarding plans for 'Christmas in Motley' Dec. 4.
- HEARD a summary of a closed meeting held regarding the performance review for Motley Police Chief Jason Borash. Borash received 50.02 out of 56 points, which is highly satisfactory.
- ACCEPTED a $53,167.52 reimbursement from the Emergency Management Assistance Compact for the Motley Fire Department's service in Oregon. Two Motley firefighters had traveled to Oregon in October of 2020 to help with the wildfires. Per Fire Chief Brad Olson's recommendation, $40,018.13 will be put into the truck fund; and $13,149.39 into the fire budget.
- APPROVED the Police Officer Standards and Training (POST) Mandated Policy Update regarding Allegations of Misconduct.
- ACCEPTED the new policy regarding Opioid overdose medication, per request of the police department.
- APPROVED the request of Chief Borash to attend the MN Chiefs of Police Executive Training Institute Oct. 31 - Nov. 3, plus hotel and travel expenses.
- APPROVED a motion to eliminate the part-time police position, as it is no longer needed (the city currently has two full-time officers). Subsequently, Officer Josh Pesta is no longer needed. Acting Mayor Amy Hutchison asked that Chief Borash let Pesta know the city appreciates all he did with the police department. "He was a good employee here," she added.
- APPROVED the request of City Clerk/Treasurer Curt Bryniarski to go with UB Max (utility billing software) and CTAS (accounting and payroll software).
- APPROVED Bryniarski's request to attend LMC's Clerks Academy in Oct. 7 - 8, plus hotel expense.
- APPROVED a request from Bob Koenig to use the Fire Hall meeting room to conduct a Fall Firearm Safety Class for six nights in September. The city will waive the usual fee.
- APPROVED a bingo permit request from St. Michael's Catholic Church for Nov. 21.
- APPROVED the preliminary 2021 levy for both Cass and Morrison counties, collectible in 2022. The proposed total certified levy is $407,994 which is a 4.62 percent increase from last year's final levy.
- SET the next regular council meeting for Monday, Oct. 11, 6:30 p.m.

Hoping to help put Motley on the map

Sherry (Miller) Frisk of Motley (standing) spoke at the Motley City Council's regular meeting Sept. 13, informing them of plans that are in the works to bring more positive events to town. Frisk, along with other community volunteers, will be organizing a "Trunk or Treat" event for Oct. 30; and "Christmas in Motley (Santa Day)" is planned for Dec. 4. They are working on getting Motley on the map, Frisk told the council. Pictured back row, from left, are Acting Mayor Amy Hutchison; and council members Pat O'Regan and Steve Johnson. Front row, from left, are Curt Bryniarski, City Clerk/Treasurer; Bruce Brotherton, Public Works Director; and Police Chief Jason Borash. (Staples World photo by Dawn Timbs)

Motley man arrested in burglary case

Morrison County Sheriff Shawn Larsen reports that on Sept. 15, deputies executed a search warrant at a residence off Highway 10, approximately five miles south of Motley in Scandia Valley Township.

According to the sheriff's office, deputies located two enclosed trailers full of personal property that were stolen in a burglary reported back in November of 2020. The value of the trailers and personal property inside was estimated to be over $30,000.

Forty-year-old Derek Holmberg of Motley was questioned and admitted his involvement in this burglary. Holmberg was placed under arrest and is currently awaiting formal charges in this matter.

The Morrison County Sheriff's Office was assisted at the scene by the Motley Police Department.

COVID increasing in every community

The Wadena zip code has 50 new cases in a one week period, Long Prairie has 28, Pillager 15 and Staples 14. The virus is reaching smaller communities in larger numbers than in previous weeks, with Browerville and Verndale showing seven new cases and Motley six.

Mystery photo

Hello readers. This week's archive photo is from our July 3, 1980 edition. Do you know who these people are and perhaps the context of the photo? Email your answers and where you are from to dtimbs@staplesworld.com by Friday morning, or call 218-894-1112. The answers will be published in next week's paper, as well as a new mystery photo.

Mystery solved

Last week's mystery photo, published in the Sept. 16, 1971 edition of the Staples World, featured head coach Jerry Riewer congratulating Dave Anglin and Tim Roline following their selection by their teammates to captain the 1971 Cardinal Cross-Country team at Staples high school. "The co-captains are both seniors and are expected to lead their team to a very successful season this fall," the coach said. Tim is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Roline and Dave is the son of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Anglin.

Kevin Roline of Nevis (1980 Staples High School grad) correctly identified all, adding that the photo definitely brought back memories. Kevin shared that his brother, Tim, has since passed away; but that Dave Anglin has been heavily involved in Staples-Motley Athletics over the years. Thanks for participating in our Mystery Photo.

Sprucing up 'Windows on 5th' in Staples

Muralist Jen Steinkopf of Sartell has been commissioned through Discover Staples to add color and design to windows of the Batcher Block building in Staples. On Sept. 11, she was working on an art deco theme along 5th St. NE. Steinkopf, owner of Savvy Signs & Design, said the plan is to have seasonal and community-oriented designs painted on the Batcher Block windows. The overall theme will be "Windows on 5th" and "Windows on Main," with area businesses given the opportunity to sponsor a window.

Renee Kroll with Discover Staples said that this project is a partnership between Colleen Frost and several city groups, including Discover Staples, the Chamber of Commerce and the City of Staples.

Steinkopf was hoping to have a lot of the artwork completed by Thursday, Sept. 23, when a bonding tour of the Batcher Block Opera House (BBOH) will be given by the BBOH committee, the Staples Economic Development Authority and MN House Representative John Poston. According to a brochure, "Staples area leaders have joined forces with the City of Staples compelled by one ambitious goal: to restore the Batcher Block Opera House and bring vibrancy back to the heart of downtown Staples." Rep. Poston believes the BBOH "can be the centerpiece of Staples. People would come from all over the state and the country to visit." (Staples World photos by Dawn Timbs)

Car seat safety

From Todd County Health and Human Services

One of the most important jobs you have as a parent is keeping your child safe when your child is riding in a vehicle.

Each year, thousands of young children are killed or injured in car crashes. Proper use of car safety seats helps keep children safe. Because so many different seats are on the market, many parents find this overwhelming. If you are expectant parents, consider working with a certified passenger safety technician before your baby is born, to ensure a safe ride home from the hospital.

The type of seat your child needs depends on several things, including your child's age, size, and developmental needs. Visit the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) for more information: https://www.healthychildren.org/English/safety-prevention/on-the-go/Pages/Car-Safety-Seats-Information-for-Families.aspx.

Worker shortages affecting Minnesota

From Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development (DEED)

September is Workforce Development Month, a time to honor workforce development leaders and staff across Minnesota, as well as draw attention to the resources available to those looking for work, wanting to prepare for in-demand employment or exploring their career options. The State of Minnesota recognizes that investment in the education, training and career advancement of Minnesota's workforce is crucial to the ability of our state to compete in the global economy. In Minnesota, the Department of Employment and Economic Development (DEED) and its business and nonprofit partners throughout the state lead these important efforts.

Minnesota's unemployment rate for July is at 3.9 percent, nearly where it was before the pandemic hit in early 2020. But the unemployment rate is only part of the story. Minnesota's labor force participation rate was 67.8 percent in July, significantly higher than the national rate of 61.7 percent, but down from Minnesota's rate of 70.2 percent right before the pandemic. That drop of 2.4 percentage points translates to 87,050 Minnesotans no longer working or looking for work.

"At DEED we are working to increase Minnesota's labor force participation rate, but we know there are many reasons why some Minnesotans have at least temporarily left the labor force," said DEED Commissioner Steve Grove. "Many people are concerned about contracting COVID-19, others have struggled with child care, and often there is a mismatch between the skills and location of people looking for work and the types of jobs available now. At DEED we're working to overcome these barriers and help people find work that is a good fit for them and help Minnesota employers find the workers they need to succeed."

The COVID-19 pandemic has changed Minnesota's labor market in unprecedented ways, starting with the largest and fastest job loss in state history to the steepest, followed by the swiftest employment recovery Minnesota has ever witnessed following a recession. Currently, there are tens of thousands of jobs available across the state and employers are struggling to find workers to fill them due to a variety of factors. In some cases, workers may need to gain new skills to find a job in their area that meets their family's needs. Collaboration between the workforce system and business, education, and private-public partners is critical to align training and workforce needs.

"Never in recent memory have investments in our state's workforce development and the need to innovate to adapt to rapid changes been more important," said Commissioner Grove. "Thanks to bipartisan support in the state legislature last session, Minnesota has made significant additional investments to help Minnesotans who are underemployed or who have barriers to employment get the training they need to get hired in jobs that are in high demand and on a promising career path."

Throughout the pandemic, DEED staff have been working to connect more Minnesotans who are out of work with employment and resources to help them prepare for employment including local training programs and Adult Basic Education. DEED staff have made more than 70,000 phone calls to Minnesotans receiving unemployment benefits. In every conversation, staff shared information about CareerForce resources that could help them find employment.

CareerForce is Minnesota's workforce system and is made up of DEED staff and workforce development partners around the state who are offering services over the phone, online in person by appointment. CareerForce is helping people leverage transferable skills to move to new in-demand careers when they can't find work in their previous field, which is especially essential now as federal enhanced unemployment benefits end in early September. CareerForce staff are also helping Minnesotans work on their resumes, prepare for job interviews and network to find employment now.

Even before the pandemic, there were major changes underway in Minnesota's workforce due to dramatic demographic changes in our state and across the country. In Minnesota, more than a half million people will reach the age of 65 between 2015 and 2035, leading to a decline in the share of the working age population from 62 percent to 57 percent during that time. In addition, by 2035, one in four Minnesotans will be from a community of color or Indigenous population.

Bringing all Minnesotans who need sustainable employment into the workforce will help address employment and economic disparities faced by some Minnesotans that have a negative impact on all state residents. Opioid abuse rates not declining in rural areas

By Central States Center for Agricultural Safety and Health

The manner in which people abuse opioid drugs evolved in 2020, but the basic issues surrounding abuse of these pain relievers remain the same.

Dr. Tina Christine L. Chasek, LIMHP, LADC, LPC, University of Nebraska-Kearney Associate Professor/ Department of Counseling and School Psychology, says information recently released by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), provides a snapshot of current U. S. opioid abuse.

"Their information led me to some conclusions about current abuse situations," Chasek says. "The data appears to indicate that abuse of prescription opioids has declined. However, the use of illegal synthetic opioids, such as fentanyl has increased by about 10 percent."

Chasek credits perseverance of the medical community in closely monitoring opioid prescriptions use to help uncover abuse of the drugs and efforts to educate patients about opioid addiction risks. Improved prescription tracking tools have also helped reduce the number of people who successfully go from doctor to doctor to obtain excess prescription supplies.

"Those efforts, coupled with new regulations that help eliminate some barriers to helping people in treatment for drug abuse, have helped bring the volume of prescription drug abuse activities down," Chasek says. "The bad news about opioid abuse is that isolation caused by Covid-19 restrictions has driven stress levels in general higher and overall substance abuse, including opioid drugs, has gone up."

Over the past year, Covid restrictions has negatively impacted access to substance abuse treatment programs and increased barriers for entering medical facilities.

"For rural America, the good news is that opioid abuse rates dropped over the past year," Chasek says.

A recent American Farm Bureau Federation survey revealed that, in rural areas, some 74 percent of people reported being impacted by opioid abuse practices. The survey indicated that the study participants either knew someone who abused opioids or were abusing the drugs themselves.

"Since Covid-19 began spreading, about 42 percent of survey respondents said they knew someone who used opioid drugs to self-medicate due to Covid-related stress," Chasek says. "When someone abuses drugs to self-medicate in this way, it doesn't point to a very good outcome, especially when drugs such as fentanyl, which is up to 100 times more potent than morphine, are involved."

The U.S. Department of Justice/Drug Enforcement Administration's (DEA) Drug Fact Sheet notes that that fentanyl is a synthetic opioid that was first developed in 1959 and introduced in the 1960s as an intravenous anesthetic. It is frequently used to help manage pain for cancer patients. Fentanyl pharmaceutical products are currently available as oral transmucosal lozenges (lollipops), effervescent buccal tablets, sublingual tablets, sublingual sprays, nasal sprays, transdermal patches and injectable formulations.

Primary indications that a person may be struggling with opioid addiction include extended use of a pain medication, continued or increasing pain, abnormal sleepiness or lack of focus, and changes in general behaviors.

"Look for depression, too," Chasek says. "Ongoing pain makes you feel bad physically and emotionally and could lead to depression. If someone is irritable or seems to become cranky before it's time to take their medication, those can all be red flags.

If family members or friends suspect opioid abuse in an individual, taking time to respectfully and carefully approach them to offer support may be an effective way to help them recognize their opioid use disorder.

"If you see something, say something," Chasek says. "We speak up because we care about people and want to help. Be respectful and kind rather than accusatory and defensive or angry. Right now, it may be challenging to gain access to drug abuse treatment but be persistent. Drug addiction is a disease. Don't blame or point fingers. Opioids cause changes in the brain and addicts need help to get back on the right path so they can heal."

MMA urges COVID-19 vaccine requirements

The Minnesota Medical Association (MMA) Board of Trustees recently approved a proposal urging all Minnesota healthcare organizations—large and small—to adopt COVID-19 vaccine requirements for staff and employees with limited exemptions for medical contraindications or religious beliefs. Already, at least nine Minnesota health systems—Allina Health, Children's Minnesota, CentraCare, Essentia Health, HealthPartners, Hennepin Healthcare, Mayo Clinic, M Health Fairview and Sanford Health—have mandated the COVID-19 vaccine, with some requiring all employees to be fully vaccinated as early as this month.

"The MMA Board of Trustees was deliberate in our consideration of this issue and sought direct input from MMA physician members on a draft policy," says MMA President Marilyn Peitso, MD. "Of members who reviewed the policy proposal, 89 percent voted in favor of the Board adopting the proposal."

In late July, the American Medical Association (AMA), along with 56 other groups representing physicians, nurses, pharmacists, and other healthcare workers, released a joint statement calling for mandatory COVID-19 vaccinations for all U.S. healthcare workers.

"Physicians, nurses and other healthcare workers have demonstrated consistent leadership, courage and resilience throughout this pandemic," Peitso says. "Their continued leadership in accepting vaccinations will protect immunocompromised individuals, other healthcare employees, and children who are not yet eligible for vaccination. We believe vaccine requirements for healthcare professionals are the right thing to do to protect all Minnesota communities."

The MMA position also recognizes the health equity impact as COVID-19 has highlighted the health inequities that currently exist with vulnerable populations being more affected than others. As noted by one MMA member, "health care providers have a special responsibility to do everything to redress the inequity[ies], including our personal actions like getting vaccinated."

Unlock your inner purpose

By Richard Leider and David A. Shapiro Blue Zones

We, Richard Leider and Dave Shapiro, have long traveled our paths together as friends, colleagues, and coauthors. We met back in the 20th century, when Richard was still known as Dick Leider and Dave made sure to be called David A. Shapiro. The name change for Richard happened soon after the publication of our first book, Repacking Your Bags: Lighten Your Load for the Good Life, when he approached the half-century mark and began taking himself more seriously as a writer and speaker. And coincidentally, when Dave turned 50, about the time our third book, Claiming Your Place at the Fire: Living the Second Half of Your Life on Purpose, came out and he started taking himself, on the whole, less seriously, he began introducing himself with the shortened moniker.

This is to illustrate in one small way our abiding belief that growth can continue to happen from cradle to grave. The path of purposeful aging is always open to us if we're willing to keep growing; it will be different for everyone but is accessible to all.

There are three simple steps can help unlock our purpose.

Step 1: Find Out How You Want to Help

When Richard launched his coaching practice, he helped anyone in any way he could. He conducted surveys, ran workshops, met in coffee shops, and spoke in church basements. This is what he knew and was good at, but parts of it didn't energize him. In fact, they were draining. As he acquired more and more clients with varying needs, he found that what he really loved to do and was good at was creating content and sharing it by writing and speaking.

So, ask yourself: What are my gifts? What do I love to do? To unlock our purpose, we need to figure out how we can best use the gifts we love to make a contribution to others.

What are my gifts? What do I love to do? To unlock our purpose, we need to figure out how we can best use the gifts we love to make a contribution to others.

Step 2: Find Out Who You Want to Help

Richard has long enjoyed the privilege of creating content and speaking to hundreds of people. He has written books that have reached more than a million readers worldwide. In doing so, he's learned that the people he's most motivated to help are those age 50 and beyond. He feels most aligned with his purpose of growing and giving when he's supporting people who want to grow old, not just get old. Most of his work now focuses on the shift from adulthood to elderhood, as in this book.

So, ask yourself: Who do I want to help? What pain or injustice or unhappiness have you witnessed that you just can't live with? Is there something that touches you so deeply that it keeps you up at night? There is certainly no shortage of people whom we could use our gifts to help, inspire, or support.

Is there something that touches you so deeply that it keeps you up at night? There is certainly no shortage of people whom we could use our gifts to help, inspire, or support.

Step 3: Find Out What Energizes You (and What Drains You)

It's not enough to know the passion or problem you want to solve; we need to think carefully about the way that we want to solve it. Early in Richard's career, he worked in personnel (aka human resources) at two large organizations. He was successful but restless, so he created a side hustle called Lunch Hour, Ltd.: "You buy me lunch, I coach you." He often found himself obsessing about it and creating new content for his clients. The side hustle forced him to ask himself, "What do I really want to do?" He decided that he wanted to figure out exactly why so many people died shortly after retiring. His own father was an example. So, he applied for and received a Bush Fellowship, left his job, took a second mortgage on his house, and headed to Boston, where he apprenticed on the Harvard Study of Adult Development. This experience opened his eyes to how his gifts, passions, and values fit together. He took a giant leap and opened up a coaching practice and co-authored his first book: The Inventurers: Excursions in Life and Career Renewal.

It's not enough to know the passion or problem you want to solve; we need to think carefully about the way that we want to solve it.

So, ask yourself: What am I willing to sacrifice for? When you discover something you're willing to sacrifice for, you know that you're onto your purpose. Choosing to name and live our purpose is an act of courage. Ultimately, what gives our lives aliveness is living with alignment—unlo0cking our purpose and acting in a way that is a bold expression of who we are at our core.

When you discover something you're willing to sacrifice for, you know that you're onto your purpose.

"God's Generous Gift of Summer"

Pastor Barry Klein, Staples Church of Christ

Did you know that seasons are by God's design? Genesis 1:14 reminds us that "God said, 'Let there be lights in the expanse of the sky to separate the day from the night and let them serve as signs to mark seasons and days and years.'"

It is really quite remarkable, if you pause to think about it, how incredibly rhythmic life from God is. Oh, I am very aware of significant and unexpected interruptions" into our lives from what we were anticipating. But even in those struggles, we often see the life-giving return to a flow of life that helps us regain equilibrium in God, Whose Sovereignty was not interrupted. (It would be time well spent for us, in an unhurried way, to ponder examples of that last sentence together).

That beloved prose in Ecclesiastes 3:1 reminds us that "There is a time for everything, and a season for every activity under heaven." We even are entrusted in our area with the service of "Seasons" Adult Foster Care.

Here we are towards the end of summer of 2021 after a very difficult 15+ months "season" of a ravaging Covid-19 pandemic. Thankfully, at least in our country, we are experiencing signs of its turn around. We are appreciating the return of some freedoms that were restricted going through the pandemic. Although we experienced a heat wave in need of rain in the opening of summer (and beyond), we hear the birds singing, we feel warmth outside and head for A/C or fans inside. We are going on outings again in ways that were severely restricted last summer. After another difficult year for our schools, it is a "breath of fresh air" to be out and see the beauty of God's creation all around us, giving Him thanks for it all.

We are treasuring the additional opportunities that summer brings in being together with family and friends around a cup of coffee or around a campfire. Reunions of all sorts come in the summer be they class reunions or family reunions. Even some "celebrations of life" on behalf of our loved ones with postponed funerals will find us gathering to remember and appreciate the gift from God that our loved ones were and continue to be to us.

Deuteronomy 8 continues to be a needed "gratitude check" for us as we experience yet another one of God's generous summers. In that chapter, God notes that we often forget Him in His generosity. May we remember Him.

Tennis team comes back after tough match

The Staples-Motley girls tennis team did not meet the challenge of a competitive Crosby-Ironton team and lost 5-2 on Sept. 14. The Cardinals came back to defeat Wadena-Deer Creek 5-2 that same day, then two days later they won some close matches to beat Perham 4-3.

Against Crosby-Ironton, the Cardinals had more unforced errors than normal. Lauren Rutten and Allison Knosalla had the two wins for Staples-Motley. Against Wadena-Deer Creek, four of the matches went to three sets, with Staples-Motley winning three of them.

Against Perham, Knosalla won a third set tiebreaker to be the deciding win for the team.

Second quarter scores leads to loss

For the second game in a row, the Staples-Motley football team stayed even for the first quarter, then allowed multiple scores in the second quarter, going on to lose 45-0 at Osakis on Sept. 17.

The Cardinals played good defense to keep it 0-0 after one quarter, but Osakis opened up the game with five touchdowns in the second quarter, including a fumble return. Osakis added one more score in the third quarter.

Quarterback Isaiah Schultz completed seven passes, four to Chandler Braith for 56 yards and three to Hunter Martin for 14 yards. Sivert Klefsaas had 11 rushes for 47 yards. The Cardinals converted two of their eight third down opportunities, limiting their offensive chances in the game.

Cross country competes with big school teams

The Staples-Motley cross country teams ran against large school competition at the Little Falls Lucky Lindy meet on Sept. 16.

The Cardinal girls team tied with Perham for third place after the first five runners but fell to fourth on the tiebreaker sixth runner. The girls were competing without their top runner, but Aften Robinson stepped up to finish in the top ten.

The boys team competed hard but fell to fifth place, finishing as the third Class A school in the meet. Grant Johnson had a good race as the fifth runner, closing the gap with the team's top runners.

The Cardinals will next run at the Roy Griak Invitational at the University of Minnesota on Friday, Sept. 24, a large meet with teams from multiple states and Canada.

Cardinals bounce back to place 2nd at tourney

The Staples-Motley volleyball team never got going in a 3-0 loss at Pequot Lakes on Sept. 16, but had better success at the Walker-Hackensack-Akely tournament on Sept. 18, where they won four of their six matches to place second in the tournament.

At the WHA tournament, the Cardinals lost their first match against Sebeka, splitting the first two sets and falling two points short in the tiebreaker set. They then had three straight wins against Kaleidoscope Charter, Walker-Hackensack-Akely and Blackduck. That placed them in the upper bracket of the tournament, where they won against Bertha-Hewitt to reach the final. They met WHA for the second time but this time fell just short to finish second.

Staples-Motley is now 11-4 on the season.

Joerger gives insights into life in the NBA

By Mark Anderson
Managing Editor

Staples native Dave Joerger learned his secret to becoming an NBA coach early on in his career.

"I had to figure out how to get along with people," he said at a program titled "Inside the NBA" at Centennial Auditorium in Staples on Sept. 11. The program was simply a conversation with Craig Wolhowe, "like we were talking at Lefty's," he said.

Joerger talked about some of his favorite players, many of them from his days coaching in the minor leagues. He talked about the three NBA franchises he has coached for, the Memphis Grizzlies, Sacramento Kings and Philadelphia 76ers.

Joerger said he never thought about how momentous his journey to the NBA was, until he won his 100th career game at Madison Square Garden in New York. "I thought, 'wow, what am I doing here?'" said Joerger.

Joerger was one of the early adopters of the analytics system that uses statistics to help coaches. For example, he said they not only use the numbers to find the best three player combinations, on the team, but he also has to try and figure out why those players work well together.

Because of his knowledge of analytics, Joerger has become known as a defensive coach. But Philadelphia 76ers coach Doc Rivers asked him to run the offense, which he prefers.

"I grew up drawing up plays on napkins and watching tapes. Now when I'm on the sidelines, Doc will ask me to go draw up a play."

The hardest part of NBA coaching is meeting with the media three times a day. Joerger said "You always have to be on."

After game interviews are the worst. "You just made 10,000 decisions in an hour and a half, and the media judge you on every one of them," he said.

The pressure of the NBA is so great that he said winning is more of a relief than a celebration, while losing is miserable. Joerger talked about coaching at the All Star game this past year, which was a great experience, but he said the playoffs are the "fun stuff".

"For the playoffs, we do a deep dive, like a doctoral thesis on the tendencies of the other team and strategies to counter them," said Joerger. "The game plan is a thick book and we do more video analysis."

One playoff series when he was coaching for Memphis against Oklahoma City had four games go into overtime. Joerger talked about what it's like to be in the huddle with six seconds left and you have to draw up a plan to get the the final score.

"I've drawn up some pretty bad plays that worked and some good ones that don't," he said.

Inside NBA practices, Joerger said most instruction focuses on team plays and strategies. Players work on individual skills and shooting on their own, before and after practice.

"People think the NBA doesn't play hard during the regular season," said Joerger, "but they are such great athletes, I think they're the best in the world, they're all so fast, they close a lot of space quickly," so the margin of making a play is very slim.

All of today's NBA players are talented, but Joerger said teams seek out the players who want it more, have toughness and are great teammates.

His Sacramento Kings teams were not the best teams but they were a young team that surprised a lot of people when they ran on them. Joerger's Sacramento teams improved every year he was there, but he was fired anyway. He said that's just the way it goes in the NBA. The same thing with player trade rumors. "We can't worry about all that, our job is to coach them," he said.

Movie career?

Joerger said he ran into Adam Sandler at a restaurant and eventually got connected with a movie Sandler is making about coaching basketball in Philadelphia. Joerger said he is now in the movie, "Hustle," coming out in April, but he doesn't have any speaking lines.

Joerger said he loved seeing how a movie is made, but he plans to stick with coaching.

Joerger said he loves to see people from home when he's out on the road. It all goes back to the lesson he learned of getting along with people.

Creating a makerspace

lery space, performances, cafes and karaoke. In one community, the school started a store to sell art made by students. Bringing art to empty downtown buildings brings people into the building and gives them ideas on how to improve the building.

Food is another topic a community can use to develop entrepreneurs. Sprout MN gave a presentation on how to help local food producers, farmers and ranchers. Sprout has become an economic development multiplier in Little Falls, with many businesses that have been started there and gone on to flourish on their own.

Individual business owners also talked about how they learned what works and what doesn't in their community. In the session about boutiques and pop-up stores in downtowns, several of the store owners said they got help from their area Small Business Development Center and other economic development partners.

Mary Ives of Timberlake Hotel in Staples hosted a session to talk about her experience with building a new hotel in Staples. She said they were amazed when 40 people came to the first meeting to talk about the possibility of a hotel. "We knew right away it was a supportive community," said Ives.

The hotel came to Staples in part because the Ives family saw a big arts section and a well rounded community.

"You need all that to get people to move to the community," she said.

The pandemic threw a wrench into their three year plan, causing worker layoffs and difficulty with getting supplies.

"It was very difficult, it changed the way we did things," said Ives. Their three year plan became a five year plan and Ives said they are very pleased with the outlook for the hotel.

Other sessions focused on the growing movement of social entrepreneurship, energy opportunities, using business data, finance and Launch Minnesota from DEED.

Natural pet products

Through her love of animals, Schulte eventually became certified in the grooming business. "I aced the test," she laughed.

Services offered at Hwy 10 Paw Spa include baths, nail trims, shaving, brushing and de-shedding. She has a wonderful oil she uses during the de-shedding process, Schulte said. "We use all natural products here...no chemicals," she added.

When grooming cats, Schulte uses a 'cat bag' which keeps them really calm during their appointment. If a cat's fur has gotten especially matted, it will require shaving, she said.

Schulte is currently continuing her education, studying pet first aid, nutrition and dog psychology. In addition to becoming certified as a vet assistant, she wants to continue to expand her grooming business. "It's a lot of fun," she says.

Schulte said she's available to groom dogs and cats at most any time. To make an appointment for your furry friend, call Hwy 10 Paw Spa at 218-414-0992.

are the ones who are mainly running Liquor Depot. Tom and Jim help out as they are able, but both of the men have other jobs as well. Jim is employed at 3M and Tom works at True Value, both in Staples. "We're the support crew," Jim says of their roles at the liquor store.

They've enjoyed getting to know their customers over the past several months, are appreciative of the support they've experienced from the community and are holding "Customer Appreciation Week," Sept. 20 - 26.

Tom, Jayne, Jim and Jackie encourage people to stop by Liquor Depot throughout the week for the opportunity to win prizes (there will be drawings) and to taste samples of different products. There are other incentives for customers as well, includingN collecting tokens toward a free case of beer.

The Liquor Depot is located at 1017 US 10 E, Staples. They are open Monday - Saturday, 9 a.m. - 10 p.m.; and Sunday, 11 a.m. - 6 p.m. For more information, call 218-895-5710.

Still going strong

The Liquor Depot was opened in 2009, by Henry and Joann Schornack. This past April it was sold to two local couples, Tom and Jayne Olson, and Jim and Jackie Tyrrell. Located along Highway 10 in Staples, the business is still going strong. (Staples World photo by Dawn Timbs)
